CFR's mission is to provide families in crisis with free legal assistance and social work services that enable children to stay with their parents safely – and keep them out of a foster care system that often has devastating consequences. Our model uses a groundbreaking approach that offers each family a lawyer and a social worker, as well as a Parent Advocate – someone who has experienced the foster care system firsthand and can empathize with the struggles vulnerable families face. Recognized as credible experts in the field, we routinely receive requests for training and technical assistance from organizations around the country that want to adopt CFR's innovative model.
